

Collections Archivist (Lib/Arch II - Collections)

The MIT Libraries is seeking a collaborative and creative Collections Archivist to join the Institute Archives and Records Management Program within the Distinctive Collections(DDC). Reporting to the Institute Archivist, the Collections Archivist will engage in a variety of activities centered on inclusive appraisal, acquisition, and stewardship of archival and manuscript collections in all formats. This position plays a crucial role in documenting and preserving the diverse histories and contributions of the MIT community.

In DDC, our holdings, unified by their uniqueness and rarity, span various disciplines, time periods, and formats, with notable strengths in science, technology, architecture, and the history of MIT. The Institute Archives' collections cover the administrative, educational, cultural, and social activities of MIT and its community. They include organizational records, faculty papers, research, curricula, publications, and materials documenting student life. Join us in our mission to safeguard the rich legacy of MIT and its vibrant community.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Collection Development (40%)

- Builds and maintains donor relationships through in-person meetings, correspondence and outreach activities, including the management of the LibAnswers donations queue.
- Participates in collection development efforts related to and about the Institute (faculty research and papers and community and student life), including donor relationship management and deed of gift negotiation, and donation surveying, appraisal, and accessioning.
- Collaborates closely with the Women@MIT Archivist for collection development and donor relationship activities related to overlapping priorities.
- Performs site visits to survey and appraise potential acquisitions, researches collections, and brings suggestions to the DDC collection development group.
- Provides consultation to faculty, staff, alumni, and student and affiliated organizations on archival practices and possible collaborations and partnerships with the Institute Archives and Records Management Program.
- Participates in projects and initiatives that ensure representation in our collections of the diverse voices and experiences of the MIT community, past and present, and commits to working with individuals and groups who are underrepresented in the collections.
- Assists Institute Archivist with outreach to MIT community groups, particularly student organizations, in order to support both collecting Institute life and developing post-custodial relationships.
- Collaborates with Libraries and non-Libraries stakeholders to develop and support innovative and special projects, such as oral histories or digital initiatives that support unit priorities.

Collections Stewardship (30%)

- Supports the audit of program collections, including for rights, access, and restriction reviews, and updates collection-level information when necessary, to ensure up-to-date information is available to staff and researchers.
- May serve on rights review groups within the Libraries and participate in rights review processes.
- In collaboration with the Processing Manager and Processing Team, participates in targeted projects to reappraise materials, identify gaps in our collections, and enhance access.
- In collaboration with colleagues, identifies and prioritizes collections for processing, reformatting, and potential grant-funded projects.

General Department Activities (20%)

- Provides in-person and virtual reference services, including regular shifts at the reference desk, ensuring excellent service, professional reception, and positive research interactions for researchers of all skill levels using MIT's Distinctive Collections.
- Collaborates with the Institute Records Manager, Processing Team, and Public Services Team to answer questions related to restrictions and access, and applies restrictions in accordance with established policies.
- May support outreach, community engagement, and research activities related to the history of MIT.
- Serves as a member of the Libraries' Emergency Response Team, and assists with collections emergency response (e.g., water leaks), as needed.
- Participates in local and Libraries-wide committees/teams/groups or projects and performs other duties as assigned.

Other (Professional) (10%)

- Engages in professional activities through professional associations, meetings and conferences, teaching, research and writing, or committee work.
- Stays informed with current practices and advances in archival appraisal and accessioning, information management standards, and systems for sustainability and long-term access of archival collections.

REQUIREMENTS

- Master's degree from an ALA-accredited program with a concentration in archival studies, or an advanced degree in a related field in addition to archival certification (Certified Archivist).
- Minimum 3 years of professional experience working with the appraisal, and acquisition of archival collections.

- Demonstrated ability to cultivate and sustain productive relationships with donors, faculty, administrative and academic staff.
- Experience and familiarity with an archival content management system and technologies applicable for the archival environment (e.g., DSPACE, Archon, ArchivesSpace, CONTENTdm, etc.) and the facility to learn and master new software, systems, and technology.
- Knowledge of and experience with descriptive standards such as DACS, EAD, and Dublin Core
- Knowledge of issues regarding security, confidentiality, intellectual property, and access rights to archival and records collections.
- Excellent written and oral communication skills, including the ability to explain complex concepts to others with differing levels of expertise.
- Ability to identify problems, think creatively, and carry out solutions independently and as part of a group or team, particularly when several priorities arise at the same time.
- Demonstrated ability to work well with diverse groups of people; to productively handle relationships and conflicts; and to embrace the values of equity, diversity, inclusion, and social justice in working with people, collections, and systems.
- Ability to make local on-site visits to donor's homes and other off-campus locations via public transportation, personal vehicle, or other transportation options.

We expect candidates to be stronger in some qualifications listed above than others; we are committed to helping our future colleague expand their skills, as well as learning from their areas of strength.
